Pretty Filly Brings Joy to Girl Owner

By JUANITA M. FEEDER
 Joan Edwards, 13-year-old student at Van Nuys Junior High School was "pacing the barn floor" at the Sepulveda Stables two weeks ago when her mare "Painted Lady" was due to foal. The anxieties of motherhood burst on Joan when the filly arrived ten days late, but today the pinto filly

Tesente Teleta is a beautiful capering pet.
 Named "Pretty Girl" in Indian language, Tesente Teleta is the center of attraction for Joan and her friends. Motorists along Sepulveda Boulevard watch the filly galloping in the meadow every afternoon as soon as school is out.
 Joan patiently guides "Painted Lady" around as her offspring stretches her gangling legs and arches her pretty head for Joan and her pals.
 It all started when Joan, a talented artist, found herself sketching horses, horses, horses. Soon she was riding her friends' mounts. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Edwards of 6221 Columbus Ave., purchased Painted Lady, a quarter horse. Last summer she was mated with King, an American saddle bred.
 To top off the story of Joan and her horses, the Edwards' are purchasing a ranch in Northridge to "go with the horses!" Here the mare and filly will have room to roam, and Joan can train the new arrival to the saddle.

MEAL TIME finds mother and colt taking turns munching sugar from hands of Joan Edwards 13, student at Van Nuys High School, as Painted Lady and her new offspring Tesente Teleta show fondness for sweets. Joan patiently awaits time to train new arrival to the saddle.
